Attendance

Attendance will not be counted against students at this time, and it will not affect middle school or high school admissions. Students are encouraged to participate online everyday

The New York state English Language Arts and math exams for grades 3-8 have been suspended by the New York State Education Department (NYSED)

Regents exams have been cancelled for June, 2020

Students who planned to take one or more Regents exams in June will be exempt so long as they pass the related course this school year. The same standard applies for students who wanted to take a 4+1 Pathway exam.

- If a student has already passed a course but was planning to take the exam in June, they will also be exempt from the exam.
 - If a student fails the course, they must take summer school and pass the class in order to earn the diploma credit by August.
 - Students who wanted to retake the test to get a passing score must show/inform their school that they intended to take the June exam, received tutoring or academic intervention to prepare for the test, or have already recently retaken the exam in an attempt to raise their score.
 - Districts will still be required to allow students to take the test at a later time if they wish.
